The Cost of Manual Decision-Making

- Sales forecasting is manual and slow
- Customer segmentation is inconsistent
- Data insights are delayed and underutilized

- Missed revenue opportunities
- Inefficient targeting
- Poor responsiveness to market changes

Why This Problem is Critical Today

FinMark

2026

Increasing data volume = harder manual analysis

Competitive markets demand real-time decisions

Customers expect personalized engagement

Without automation:

- Slower growth
- Higher acquisition costs
- Lower conversion rates

Our Solution

Our Approach: Predict + Forecast + Act

We built a machine learning solution that:

- Predicts customer purchase likelihood
- Forecasts sales for the next 6 months
- Identifies high-value customer segments

What We Analyzed

Customer data

Product & transaction
data

Historical sales trends

Target variable

- Purchase likelihood (Yes/No)
- Sales value (for forecasting)

How We Prepared the Data

- Cleaned missing/inconsistent values
- Created new features:
- Encoded categorical variables
- Normalized numerical features

 Customer frequency

 Recency

 Purchase patterns

What the Data Reveals

Predictable customer behavior

Consistent patterns

Frequency and spending drive purchases
